Repositories in the UK

- 130 Higher Education Institutions in England alone, (Source: HEFCE) over 200 in total
- Circa 50 have Institutional and/or Department repositories
 - OpenDOAR (www.opendoar.org) lists 56 UK repositories
 - ROAR (archives.eprints.org) lists 72, 44 of which are classed as Institutional or Departmental
- JISC (www.jisc.ac.uk) has been funding directly in this area since 2002
 - FAIR Programme (2002-2005)
 - Exchange for Learning (X4L) Programme (2002-2005)
 - Digital Repositories Programme (2005-2008)
 - JISC Capital Programme Repositories and Preservation strand (2006-)

What is a digital repository?

- Most of the 50 are repositories of scholarly outputs (eprints)
- Repositories also exist for learning objects and other materials
- Data Centres of raw research data, digital collections or digital archives or libraries in the cultural heritage sector can also be termed 'repositories'
- Often these pre-date the terminology

Definition of 'repository'

- “ ... a digital repository is differentiated from other digital collections by the following characteristics:
- content is deposited in a repository, whether by the content creator, owner or third party
 - the repository architecture manages content as well as metadata
 - the repository offers a minimum set of basic services e.g. put, get, search, access control
 - the repository must be sustainable and trusted, well-supported and well-managed”

Definition of Institutional Repository

“ ... a set of services that a university offers to the members of its community for the management and dissemination of digital materials created by the institution and its community members. It is most essentially an organizational commitment to the stewardship of these digital materials, including long-term preservation where appropriate, as well as organization and access or distribution”

A "Cosmic" View of the Repositories Space
(Wheel of Fortune)

Why do we need repositories?

- A new tool in the academic workflow
- Captures information about deposits from the author
- Added information, added-value, e.g.
 - Subject access to resources
 - Harvesting by other services
- Varied output options, e.g.
 - RAE returns
 - Departmental bibliography
 - Author CVs
- Secure, trusted storage
- Options for long-term preservation
- Policies provide clarity for depositor and user
- Open, or controlled access
- Increased impact
